CALGARY, Alberta • Lamb Development Corp, founded in 2001 by Toronto condominium broker Brad J. Lamb, has begun development on its first Calgary, Alta. condominium project.

Originally from the West Coast, Mr. Lamb has always had an interest in contributing to western growth. His current focus is Calgary, where he plans on investing in three major developments over the next three years.

His first is 6thandTenth, a 230-unit, 31-storey point tower, scheduled to break ground this fall. 6thandTenth features the clean, modern architecture for which Mr. Lamb is renowned. He has selected two design firms, aA (architectsAlliance) for architecture, and the Design Agency for the interior design. LDC ensures that all properties are focused on sustainable design. Their use of efficient space planning and green building habits offer their communities a high standard of living.

6thandTenth is located in the Beltline neighbourhood. Close to the vibrancy of Calgary's downtown core, the development will feature modern design and a five-star restaurant, a concourse-style forecourt park comprised of water pools, and designer landscaping.

Part of LDC's overall corporate plan is to help stimulate urban areas, such as this, by investing and building properties that speak to good architecture and design.
